

Having a right royal African adventure

When King George VI died unexpectedly 60 years ago this week, Princess Elizabeth was thousands of miles away at the Treetops in Kenya. Brian Jockman recalls his visit to Treetops and to other African safari camps and lodges with a connection to the royals

